HOW TO EXPLODE A LAMP .- The Scientific American gives some of the circumstances which lead to the explosion of kerosene lamps, the philosophy of all of them being that the flame may pass down the wick and ignite the vapor which accumulates in the upper portion of the lamp. This vapor is not an explosive as the term is ordinarily understood, but when it is confined so that the gases resulting from its combustion cannot escape freely into the open air the vessel confining it will be shatter ed. This ignition of the vapor may be brought about as follows:-

1. A lamp may be standing on a table or mantel, and a slight puff of air from the open window or door may cause an explosion.

2. A lamp may be taken up quickly from a table or mantel and instantly exploded. 3. A lamp is taken out into the entry where there is a draft, or out of doors, and an explo

4. A lighted lamp is taken up a flight of stairs, or is raised quickly to place it on the mantel, resulting in an explosion. In these cases the mischief is done by the air movement -cither by suddenly checking the draft, or forcing air down the chimney against the flame.

5. Blowing down the chimney to extinguish the light is a frequent cause of explosion. 6. Lamp explosions have been caused by using a chimney broken off at the top, or one that has a piece broken out, whereby the draft i variable and the flame unsteady. 7. Sometimes a thoughtless person puts a small wick in a large burner, thus leaving con siderable space along the edges of the wick. An old burner, with its air draft clogged up, which rightfully should be thrown away, in sometimes continued in use, and the final result is an explosion.

ANOTHER MIRACLE, -About three years ago Jennie Grissinger, a young lady of this city. was afflicted with disease of the spine, which gradually became worse, until she was obliged to take to her bed. She was attended by phy sicians, who resorted to every known medical expedient to relieve her except the application to the spine of a red hot iron. Two of them held a consultation recently, at which it was determined to apply this terrible remedy if she would consent to go through the ordeal. They communicated the result of their deliberations to her, but she protested against any further experiments and said she had made up her mind to trust her ease to a supernatural agency for cure -that something had told her sho should rise from her long confinement next day. She rose accordingly, and sat in a chair. The following day she walked across the room, and since she has attended church, walking perfect case. Owing to the protracted couling ment she is weak, but her spine, which was broken in three places, has been restored to its original firmness. The physicians were called in to see her after she left her hed, and expressed their surprise at the matvelous change Even her lungs, which had been seriously at feeled, seem perfectly sound. Miss Gresinger Who resides on Allison's Hill, attributes her cure to Divine interposition in answer to prayer. The had particularly fixed her mind on certain passages in the Bible relating to promises. The young lady is daily growing stronger, and expeets to be restored to perfect health. He risburg Patriot.

CIVIL RIGHTS. - The these-called civil rights suits were settled yesterday by a decision of Judge Ciles, of the U. B. District Court, which required the jury to find a vertice for the defendant. The suits arose out of a relusal of the agent of the Baltimore and Ohio radroad company to provide first class accommodations for certain colored citizens, who had paid under a special agreement a reduced rate of fare. It was contended by the plaintiffs in the case that the discrimination against the colored passes gers was on the ground of their race and color and as such in violation of the civil rights bill. The Court, after hearing the evidence and full argument by counsel, instructed the jury that the act of Congress of March 1, 1875, under which the action was brought, so far as it sooks to inflict penalties for the violation of rights which belong to citizens of a State and not to citizens of the United States, is the exercise of a power not authorized by any provision of the Constitution of the United States. This is substantially the law as laid down by the Supreme Court of the United States in the enforcement act cases. The judge, however, goes farther, and decides that "as the privilege to use for local travel any public conveyance is not a right arising under the Constitution of the United States, there can be no recovery of the penalty sued for in this case. This would seem to apply to hotels, theatres and other public places which are carried on under the protection of State law. Such interpretation of the law, it States aw. Such interpretation of the law, if affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States, will settle entirely a long standing trouble and uneasiness; it stands now, unless reversed by the Appellate Court, as the law of Mary land.—Baltimore Gazette.

TO MAKE GREAT LAYING HESS, -It is any breed as in selecting good milkers to im prove the dairy stock, and the hypotheticperhaps established fact-is one that stands to reason. Every one who keeps fowls is well aware that certain ones are greater egg producers than others of the flock, and the eggs of only such as these should be saved for the pur pose of increase. One writer on the subject says that he is perfectly e rtain that the num ber of two hundred eggs per annum may be at tained with perfect ease in a few years' time should the object be systematically sought. It is a matter within the means of all who feel in terested in it, and one that can be easily tested without any knowledge whatever as to fancy W.
